

Original photo: I began with a photo of a campsite my family and I stayed at last year on Priest Lake in Idaho.

I had a lot of fun with this assignment, especially experimenting with AI to generate different objects and effects. I explored a variety of image ideas, including Viking ships, sea serpents, asteroids, and meteors crashing into the water. While some of the asteroid images turned out pretty cool, they often appeared as though they were emerging from the water rather than crashing into it. In the end, I chose to go with two final images: a family of Loch Ness monsters and a group of five UFOs. In hindsight, I should have added a Bigfoot.
